The Iron Trap Iron Filter combines a unique blend of filtration media with oxygen (air) to create an environment where the iron in the water will settle out and become trapped in the filter media. The trapped iron is then periodically flushed from the tank and sent to a nearby drain. Small amounts of hydrogen sulfide gas, "rotten egg odor", can also be removed by this process. The typical residential Iron Trap Iron Filter uses 10x54 media tank, a unique blend of filtration media and a 1" high flow backwashing control valve.

NOTE: Additional plumbing considerations must be made if there will be any faucets or spigots piped in before the filter tank.

Iron Trap Iron Filters can be designed and manufactured to meet special applications.
